

Rick Ide

Independent

Rick Ide has over thirty-five years of diversified process, design and applications engineering, project management, technical sales, marketing and business development experience in the industrial, commercial and municipal fluid filtration industry with extensive experience in critical and demanding membrane, ion exchange and ancillary applications.

He has contributed to the design, engineering and supply of numerous water, waste water and process filtration plants involving all facets of filtration from conventional treatment to advanced membrane separations.

Rick has traveled throughout North America, Europe, South America, SE Asia and the Mid-East supporting, consulting, training and assisting in water, waste water and process filtration applications.